A 1-day First Aid module designed to teach the trainees with methods, tactics, and procedures on how they can handle inflight medical emergencies.

5. Survival Swimming

A 1-day module designed to develop the advanced swimming skills of the trainees. Since a lot of airlines are requiring their cabin crew applicants to be confident in water, the exercises in this module are patterned to the actual airlines' common swimming requirements. Thus, it makes it a very important part of the entire course.

Note: The general requirement is that all flight attendants can swim a distance of between 25 and 50 meters without a flotation device and be able to tread water for three minutes.
